Dan Kiselbach is your go-to legal professional for customs, global trade, and tax. He leverages a wealth of litigation experience at various Canadian court levels. With a keen focus on providing legal, strategic, and planning advice, Dan has guided clients across diverse sectors such as auto, energy, government, not-for-profit, and public sectors. As the Managing Partner in Vancouver, he heads the firm's Global Trade and Customs and Vancouver Tax groups offering comprehensive advice on issues ranging from anti-money laundering and terrorist financing, to controlled goods, customs and tax minimization strategies, and supply chain logistics.

Dan shares his knowledge in presentations for leading business, legal, and trade entities including Team Canada Trade Missions. He has authored works in several areas including customs, cross-border business, foreign anti-corruption, global trade, tax, and sanctions. His background makes him a reliable choice for navigating highly regulated legal landscapes. As a Cornell Executive MBA Americas graduate and mentor, he helps to set up the next generation of business leaders for success.

Renowned for his knowledge and experience, Dan Kiselbach is a trusted member of several prestigious organizations and has been consistently recognized in various well-respected industry directories. His accolades reflect his dedication to excellence in customs, e-commerce, global trade, logistics, and tax law.
