Michael Gargaro is an active member of Miller Thomson's Advocacy group, specializing in Labour and Employment, Corporate/Commercial Litigation, and other litigation matters. He has experience and interest in a wide range of litigation specialties and has effectively represented clients in both negotiation and court appearances.

During law school, Michael participated in the National Labour Arbitration Moot where he gained valuable experience advocating in the arbitration context. This is complimented by his business case competition experience across three years of competing in JDC West, the largest business case competition in Canada, during his undergraduate degree.
